Helping Struggling Readers

Helping intermediate struggling readers in the classroom means that teachers need to have knowledge of a variety of strategies. This course will focus on instructional strategies that will actively engage and motivate students. We will discuss behaviors that are common to intermediate struggling readers in whole and small group settings.

Time: 9:00 – 12:00

Presenter: Denise Callaway

Course hours: 6

Date: July 7 & July 8, 2009

Location: Mount Prospect Media Center

Course ID# 51

Differentiated Assessment

Are you wondering how to differentiate assessments to meet your students needs and interests? The first half of this course will present actual differentiated assessments used with students focusing on the pros and cons of each. In the second half, we will work on designing differentiated assessments for you own classes. The emphasis will be on the practical ins-and-outs of making differentiated assessments do-able. Examples will be taken from World Language classes, but teachers from all subjects areas are welcome.
